

Borislav BOEV

Ph.D , Secretary of Bulgarian WEC

Borislav Boev is an energy economist with a Ph.D. and professional and academic specialization in nuclear energy economics, strategic planning, project reporting, risk management and large-scale energy infrastructure development. His experience combines analytical work in the new nuclear build sector with academic research, stakeholder-oriented communication, risk-informed assessment, and decision-support reporting for complex energy projects. His work in the energy field is focused on project monitoring, strategic analysis, regulatory and institutional context, and the broader role of nuclear energy in energy security and industrial competitiveness. He also serves as Secretary of the Bulgarian National Committee of the World Energy Council, supporting expert coordination, institutional communication, and knowledge exchange within the national and international energy community.
