

Silja VALTA

Secretary General of World Energy Council Finland

Silja Valta is the Secretary General of World Energy Council Finland, the Finnish Member Committee of the World Energy Council. In her role, she is responsible for the organisation's operations, stakeholder engagement and international cooperation, working closely with leaders from across the energy sector, industry, government and academia.

Through her work, Silja brings together decision-makers, experts and businesses to discuss the future of energy and the opportunities and challenges of the energy transition. She is particularly interested in strengthening dialogue between different stakeholders and promoting international cooperation on energy-related issues.

Before joining World Energy Council Finland, Silja worked at Akava, where she was responsible for entrepreneurship and climate policy. Her professional background combines public affairs, policy advocacy and stakeholder engagement, with a particular focus on energy, climate and economic policy.
